

Interview with Jennifer Kushell of YSN

January 19, 2007 | By Travis | Interviews

After passing through customs and finding a quiet corner to call her own, Jennifer Kushell was able to find some time to allow me to interview her. When we'd normally be struggling to gain prime position in the buffet line at lunch, Jennifer is hopping and skipping from state to state presenting keynotes, promoting her book, introducing her new website, and being a strategic consultant, among many other things.

You know you're speaking to a very powerful individual when a message from their PR rep and personal assistant await you in your voicemail, confirming the interview later that day.

YSN is the network Jennifer just brought out of beta a couple weeks ago. Your Success Network pretty much enables you to develop relationships with business persons on all levels. As you'll hear in the interview, there are millionaires and billionaires in YSN that interact with young go getters like you and I, and enable us to get advice from the frontline.

My username on YSN is YoungGoGetter and I encourage you to sign-up and explore all the different elements of the network. As a bonus, they're running a contest until February 16th, which allows you to win some prizes for getting others to sign up. I'd appreciate it if anyone interested in signing up, mention that in the comments or send me an e-mail (travis (at) younggogetter (dot) com). I'll send you an invite immediately, enabling me to win some free goodies. It's a win-win situation. ;)

Take a listen to the interview, let me know what you think and if you have any questions for Jennifer post them in the comments as I'm sure she'll be dropping by.
