I Have a Dream & It Involves Blogging & a Yacht

My friend Jennifer Kushell wrote a NY Times Best-seller called "Secrets of the Young & Successful: How to get Everything you Want Without Waiting a Lifetime" and in it she asks you to define your ideal life (among the other things she helps you realize.)

I have been telling friends and family my dream for the past year or so and here it is: I want to make my living writing, which of course means blogging, from a beautiful yacht somewhere in the Carribean with my husband and my dog. My husband can retire and do what we love, travel the world. I believe this is very possible and yesterday I took a step in that direction.

Yesterday my little PR company, Starfish P.R., launched a new business model to help people get an online identity quickly and affordably. The plan is deliver low cost, high quality web development and blog support in high volume. This is not only something my team and I love to do, but it can be done anywhere...like on a boat...in the Carribean.
